Moreover, the assembly map becomes an isomorphism after tensoring over the coefficients. If we consider the Baum-Connes conjecture with coefficients in a simple unital C^* -algebra A , ie. $KK_{\ast}(C(X), A)$, we can see this conjecture as an extension of the Kasparov-Novikov conjecture, asserting that $KK_{\ast}(C(X) \rtimes G, A)$ agrees with $KK_{\ast}(C(X), A)$. Therefore, the Baum-Connes conjecture implies the Kasparov-Novikov conjecture. While extensions of the Kasparov-Novikov conjecture have been shown by Kasparov [katz] and Yaskin [yaskin], the Baum-Connes conjecture has not. In this paper we show that the Baum-Connes conjecture implies the Banach-Tarski paradox. The Banach-Tarski paradox concerns the non-existence of a decomposition of the unit ball, $B(H)$ of a Hilbert space H , into a sum of unit balls, B^n . Aspherical groups possess an isometric circle action and the
